Hitler's New Home Guarders
'Either Too Young or Too Old'

The words of the popular song aptly describe Hitler's new Volksturm — the home guard he's raising among youngsters and old men to make a last-ditch guerrilla fight when the Allies overrun the Reich itself. Oldsters, above, many of whom had never handled a gun, are lined up for target practice. In the lower photo, teenage Volksturm recruits are instructed in the use of the military compass. Says More Liquor Less Delinquency

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chronic system of distributing liquor in this country is largely responsible for juvenile delinquency in this country, according to Canon Wilberforce Cooper.
Canon Cooper favored abolition of all liquor restrictions which tended to make drinking attractive by making it difficult.
"We are committing a foul crime against youth," he said, "in allowing a system to continue which so often drives our young people into crime, experimental drinking."

U.S. Will Remain Prepared -- F.D.R.

EN ROUTE TO BOSTON WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT (AP)—President Roosevelt, making his first 1944 campaign appearance in Massachusetts, told a Springfield station audience today the nation is "not going to scuttle our strength" after this war.
"We are going to remain prepared," he declared.
In earlier speeches today, at Bridgeport and Hartford, Conn., the President declared Republican orators are trying to panic the voters with a "campaign of fear" and said he can't talk about Thomas E. Dewey the way he'd like to "because I try to think that I am a Christian."

ROME (AP)—The battle of Italy, which it was announced today has taken a total of 116,150 Allied casualties since the opening of the offensive at Cassino last May 11, was stalled in the mud of the Po Valley approaches today.
An Allied communique said activity was confined to patrolling and a few desultory clashes in the rain.

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Catherine Winicki, 38, was granted a separate maintenance from her husband, Harry, 42, after she told Judge Michael Feinberg he put out his cigarettes by pushing them in her face. Magnates Will Back Liberals For Return To Prewar Systems

TORONTO (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said tonight the "Liberal Party will be the party of big-money in the coming election."
The financial houses and industrial magnates knew the Conservative Party is on the way out; they will back the King Liberals as their only hope for "business as usual" after the war.
The Conservative Party was not only dying but splitting up in the process.
"No wonder then that the big shots are putting their money behind the Liberal Party," Mr. Coldwell continued.
"A C.C.F.-Liberal coalition is out of the question. It would be a betrayal of the hopes of the common people of Canada. Those who advocate coalition with the Liberals should not overlook the silent partners of that party. They are the monopolists who stand for the very things the C.C.F. opposes."

German Blows Push Yanks Back East of Aachen

LONDON (CP)—Forces of the 1st Canadian and British 2nd Army struck northwards towards the Maas (Meuse) River today, with Canadian troops capturing Steenberg, six miles north of Bergen op Zoom, and Polish forces taking Terheyden, four miles north of Breda.

Advancing forces stormed within three miles of the Moerdike Bridge, main escape span across the Hollandsche Diep.

Patrols north of Steenberg were said to have advanced farther to within three miles of the Hollandsche Diep.

British and U.S. troops also figured in the advances.

In the sector southeast of Aachen, German counterattacks supported by tanks recaptured the village of Schmidt, 15 miles from Aachen, from U.S. 1st Army forces. The U.S. troops were pushed back half a mile to the west.

Schmidt was lost during a day of bitter but local enemy counterattacks all through the area where infantry had pushed through forest lands toward the Cologne plain.

Americans had seized Schmidt Friday. They knocked back one German infantry assault, but gave way before a second one spearheaded by tanks.

7 TANKS WRECKED

Late today a third German attack behind 10 tanks hit the 1st Army lines northwest of Schmidt. At least seven enemy tanks were wrecked in the Schmidt sector.

The 1st Army, however, maintained and strengthened its positions at Vossenack, and a light German attack near Hurtgen was broken.

Local gains were scored elsewhere along the 500-mile front. German resistance was greatest in the U.S. plunge beyond Aachen. Radio Berlin meanwhile dimmed into German ears its warnings Gen. Eisenhower's forces were massed for a huge offensive.

Exiled Pole Gov't May Ask Washington To Set East Border

LONDON (AP)—Poland's exiled government will delay a decision on accepting Russia's terms for accord until after the United States presidential elections and then may press Washington for a clear-cut statement on its position, a Pole close to government circles said today.
Usually reliable Polish quarters said Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's cabinet was reported split on the question of accepting the Curzon Line as an eastern border, basic condition in the Soviet's bill of settlement.
But complete solidarity within the cabinet was reported on obtaining iron-clad guarantees from the three big powers of Poland's postwar sovereignty and independence—regardless of the decision in the territorial dispute.
The Polish informant, who cannot be identified by name, declared Poland was confronted at the moment by a "choice of being murdered or of committing suicide."
"The result is the same in either case," he said.

U.S. Election May Influence Aviation Agreements

By FRANK FLAHERTY
CHICAGO (CP) — A complex set of technical rules of the air for postwar flying lay before delegates to the International Conference on Civil Aviation today as they considered their bargaining positions on the larger political and economic issues involved.

As the main issue of the conference—degree of control over flying between nations to be conceded to an international authority—touches on issues in the United States presidential election, little changes in the bargaining positions of the leading powers is expected before Tuesday.

Delegates from other countries speculated on the effect of the election on the conference. A Roosevelt victory might mean a more assured and confident U.S. delegation; a Dewey victory with a change in administration might leave the position of the U.S. on international collaboration uncertain.

TALK OF "BETRAYAL"
The Chicago Tribune in a two-column Washington dispatch today threw the conference deliberations into the election campaign under the headline, "Charge United States Air Betrayal."

After calling attention to fear that the proposals advanced for the U.S. by Adolf A. Berle Jr., "would result in a complete sell-out on American overseas aviation and peril to the military security of the United States," it alleged that Canada refused to let Americans establish air lines over its territory and then got U.S. planes to do its own flying.

The Tribune said Mr. Berle's proposals would make bases in Alaska available for trans-Pacific flying and permit Canada and Britain to grab off the traffic.

WOULD LIMIT POWERS

This political play came after Mr. Berle had disclosed the U.S. position as favoring an international air authority with limited regulatory powers and a limited degree of freedom of the air.

This contrasted with the earlier Canadian draft convention calling for more extensive regulatory powers for the authority.

It also contrasted with a British written proposal along the same lines as the Canadian in principle, but amplified by a speech from Lord Swinton calling for a division of international air traffic on a quota basis.

In addition to a draft convention the U.S. presented the delegates with a three-inch-deep sheaf of documents containing suggested rules and regulations for universal adoption of technical phases of aviation.

U.S. PLAN CRITICIZED
LONDON (AP) — British opinion was far from enthusiastic today about the United States plan for an international civil aviation authority put forward at the Chicago conference.

While the British press made no editorial comment this morning, dispatches from some correspondents covering the conference said flatly that the plan, as it stood, was not satisfactory.

Under the headline "Empire Air Delegates Upset by U.S. Plan," the London Daily Mail said "it believed that the Commonwealth delegations will vote

Gail Patrick Grooms Young Victorian

Gail Patrick, glamorous Hollywood actress, who is touring western Canada on behalf of the 7th Victory Loan campaign and who arrived here late today, is shown above during her stop in Calgary greeting Jill Boorman, 24-year-old Victorian, daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. Bill Boorman.

Lieut. Boorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Boorman, 865 New- port, is at present in Calgary speaking on behalf of the Victory Loan. He was formerly a member of the crew of H.M.C.S. en bloc against such a plan." It added:

"Members of the various Commonwealth and United Kingdom delegations prepared to ask whether the British nations, representing one-fifth of the world's surface and covering both hemispheres, were to be represented under the United States plan in the proportion of two to one to a nation of such relatively small international importance as Brazil."

Leading B.C. Tories In Automobile Crash

MISSION, B.C. (CP) — Five prominent Progressive Conservatives escaped serious injury when the automobile in which they were returning to Vancouver from the opening campaign speech of Air Commodore Earl MacLepid, party candidate for the Commons in Fraser Valley, left the highway near here Friday night.

Only Mrs. Frank Patterson was hospitalized for treatment, Mrs. T. J. Briston, Leon Ladner and Air Commodore and Mrs. MacLepid escaping injury.

The colon and semicolon were first used in English punctuation in the 16th century.

Merriman Round-up ...

BARBERING is attracting a number of veterans as their choice of a job in the postwar world. At a shop in Vancouver they are taking a six-month course. Single men get $60 a month during the course. Married men get $80 and allowances for children. All the farmers in Canada seem to want a jeep, according to reports from the War Assets Corporation. The board says they will go through trade channels and adequate prices will be demanded. One proposal is to allot them to the provinces of Canada and let the provincial government handle the sales. John Dauphinee, C.P. writer in England, reports 2,000 wives of Canadians who married in England, have already crossed the Atlantic to Canada. The Canadian servicemen are now marrying at the rate of 25,000 a year—400 to 500 a week. Before the recent impetus, there had been 23,000 marriages since the war began.

IF YOUR son or husband overseas isn't getting parcels and mail regularly it is more than likely you've been careless in addressing the envelope. Every month 22,000 letters to Canadians overseas are delayed because of faulty addresses. More than 3,600 parcels are delayed every month for the same reason. Last Christmas was spoiled for 18,000 servicemen because parcels had to be returned to senders for readdressing. If they are addressed right they make good speed. P. W. King, whose son is in the air force, tells of a pair of shoes arriving in England in six days. In three years his son hasn't missed a parcel or letter. A. Hall, who has been sending cigarettes and parcels from Victoria since 1940, also has nothing but admiration for the way the Post Office does its job.

THE PROSPECT of the men fighting in Europe being sent to the Pacific war theatre when the Germans are beaten continues to draw criticism. It would be exploitation of the brave and patriotic, says one correspondent. "When they are overstrained, battle-fagged and homesick from the European war they should not be sent to sacrifice still more years and perhaps their health, having given so nobly, when there are others who should take their place and rightful share," he writes.

Prince Robert and has been stationed in Victoria for the past several months. Mrs. Boorman is also a Victoria girl, the former Joyce Thomas.

Miss Patrick will meet the public at the Victory Loan Bond Shell this evening at 7.30. She appeared in Nanaimo Friday, and today motored to Victoria, stopping off at Duncan and Ladysmith to meet the Victory Loan committees there.

OTTAWA (CP)—Seventh Victory Loan sales Friday amounted to $85,261,450 for a cumulative total at the end of the 11th day of the three-week drive of $830,402,600, or $38,000,000 more than the 6th Loan at the same stage. The minimum objective is $1,300,000,000.

In reaching Friday's total, individual Canadians purchased $40,053,750, the largest single day's purchases so far in this loan. The cumulative total of individual purchases now stands at $372,622,600. Average purchases by individuals have amounted to about $34,000,000 daily.

In the last loan, individuals in the first 11 days had purchased $324,213,050.

Twenty-four Alberta units are now over the top, Hanna, on the Goose Lake line, and Acme, in Southern Alberta, being the latest ones to reach their objectives. By Friday night Alberta had reached 76 per cent of its overall objective with subscriptions of $32,839,000.

Saskatchewan reported Moose Jaw with 79 per cent; Regina with 78 per cent; Prince Albert with 76 per cent and Saskatoon with 71 per cent.

Combined total of the armed forces is better than $43,000,000 against an original quota of $40,800,000. It is 85 per cent of their $47,853,200 total in the last loan.

C.P.R. employees were within $3,000 of the $8,000,000 mark, according to latest reports that covered up to noon Friday. The total then was given as $7,997,050, on a quota of $8,500,000.

TRAINMEN BUY BONDS

One of Canada's biggest labor organizations, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, invested $500,000, bringing total purchases of Victory Bonds by the brotherhood to $3,375,000.

Want German Heads, As Well As People, Made to Suffer

By Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

TORONTO—When the show-down comes with Germany, most commentators predict that major chasms will be created between the mass of the German people and their leaders, in an attempt to show that it is the warlike leaders and not the people themselves that plunged the world into war for the second time in 25 years.

Canadian opinion agrees already with this view, but—

Current Gallup polls show that the attitude of most Canadians on this point can be summed up in the words of a general merchant in western Canada who told a Gallup reporter: "I believe that Germany goes to war because she has warlike leaders, but to my mind, that doesn't mean that the German people themselves should be treated too leniently by the Allies. After all, they allow these leaders to exist." This Canadian, whose comment seems to epitomize the attitude of the majority of voters in this country, was answering a question which was being put, simultaneously, to hundreds and hundreds of Canadians in all parts of the country:

"Do you think it is the German people themselves that make Germany go to war, or do you think it is because they have warlike leaders?"

Most Canadians picked the warlike leaders, although a quarter of the adult population laid the blame directly at the door of the masses of the German people themselves. German people 25 per cent, some German people 11 per cent, leaders 57 per cent, undecided 7 per cent.

Women were particularly emphatic in laying the blame on German leaders:

People
Some Leaders
Undecided

| | Men | Women |
|-----------|-----|-------|
| People | 21% | 21% |
| Some | 13% | 13% |
| Leaders | 57% | 57% |
| Undecided | 7% | 7% |

Again the survey shows that Canadians of British ancestry are more apt to blame the German people themselves than are Canadians of other racial origin.

It is apparently incorrect to assume, because a majority of Canadians blame the German leaders rather than the German people for the nation's war record, that they therefore feel the German people should get off lightly in the peace settlement.

Followers of the poll will recall that recently the institute, in answer to an open question: "If you were the one to decide, what would you do with Germany after she has been defeated?" found that Canadians were in a "tough" mood, the largest group favoring some policy which would result in the destruction of the German nation as a nation. Moreover, they have held this view at least two years.

Saanich Ward Fights Airport Proposal

In protest against proposed establishment of an airport in the Gordon Head area, the Ratepayers' Association of Ward 3, Saanich, will hold a meeting at a date to be set at which they will attempt to get the backing of all residents in the area.

"We are planning to buck it with everything we have," Norman Bell, chairman of the association, said today. Establishment of such an airport would create a great nuisance, he said, and property in the area which was at present some of the most valuable in the Victoria district, would lose greatly in value.

He had not met a resident in the area who was not against such a proposal, he added.

Previously at a Saanich council meeting Tuesday, Councillor J. L. Hobbs, commenting on a letter from Victoria City council seeking co-operation and approval for the proposal, had told fellow councillors he had received numerous strong protests from residents and he had no alternative but to recommend a negative vote by the council. A vote against such a proposal was then passed unanimously by the councillors.

Former B.C. Trade Envoy Starts Forestry Practice

Charles Davies Schultz, until recently forest engineer on development at the Menzies Bay operation of Bloedel, Stewart & Welch Limited, has opened a Vancouver office as a professional Forester and Forest Engineer.

Mr. Schultz has been connected with timber and allied industries for 20 years. Starting in 1924, he spent his winters as a logger and lumberman in the rigging, on the boom and in the mills, and his summers on forest surveys with the British Columbia Forest Service.

C. D. SCHULTZ

In 1931 he joined the British Columbia Forest Service as a forest engineer and spent the next six years on forest surveys and management plans. In 1936 he went into the lumber business and a year later was appointed British Columbia Timber Commissioner to the British West Indies and Caribbean region. He returned from the West Indies in the spring of 1939 and organized a West Indies and Caribbean Department for Associated Timber Exporters of Vancouver. He enlisted at the outbreak of war and after a year of service returned to civil life and joined the logging department of Bloedel, Stewart & Welch Limited.

Mr. Schultz is one of the few who has been through the cycle of the forestry business from the planting of the tree to the sale of forest products overseas. He is a registered professional engineer, a member of the Engineering Institute of Canada, the Canadian Society of Forest Engineers, the Society of American Foresters and the Empire Forestry Association.

Roosevelt, Dewey Prepare Wind-up Campaign Speeches

By C. R. BLACKBURN
NEW YORK (CP)—President Roosevelt and his Republican opponent, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, will fire their last major shots in the election campaign tonight, the former from Boston and Mr. Dewey in New York's Madison Square Garden.

The President held his last pre-election press conference in Washington Friday, told correspondents he was praying for fine weather for his Saturday swing through the New England states, and boarded his special train for Boston.

Governor Dewey spent Friday in Albany, putting the final touches on the speech he will make here tonight without giving any hints as to whether he will fulfill the President's suspicion that he might be saving some special campaign material for his last appeal to the voters.

Mr. Roosevelt's speech tonight will be broadcast at 6 p.m., P.D.T., over CBS, NBC and Blue networks. Governor Dewey will follow the President on the air with an address at 7.30 p.m., P.D.T., over the NBC and CBS networks.

HOPE FOR FREER TRADE

SLOWLY BUT SURELY INTELLIGENT public opinion in the United States is being geared to the inescapable fact that the future prosperity of the great republic depends to a larger extent than is generally realized upon the character of international relationships in the years that follow the war. And what applies to our neighbor applies with equal force to this Dominion. The industrial and agricultural output of both countries, under the stimulus of the emergency, has exceeded all expectations. The problem to be faced sooner or later, therefore, is how to maintain a large part of that productive capacity and dispose of its products to the best advantage—in the interest of the domestic economy and as a means of satisfying the needs of a war-torn and impoverished world.

It is an old story now, of course, that as far back as 1922 the Congress of the United States added so many bricks to the American tariff wall that imports could not scale it. Moreover, and in complete disregard of the economic requirements of her position as a creditor nation, she, on the one hand, continued to insist that reparations and war debts be paid and, on the other, to refuse such payments in the only way in which they could be made—in goods. For nearly a decade the United States postponed the inevitable reckoning by making private loans abroad in amounts which exceeded the amounts due to her. The rest is history; the bubble burst in 1929, and the whole of the world's economy went into a tailspin. On this subject, incidentally, Dr. Clair Wilcox, professor of economics at Swarthmore College, some time ago filled in a few important details as follows:

"And what was our solution? In 1930 we raised our tariff again—to the highest level in history. And in 1933, without regard to the international consequences of our action, we depreciated our currency and deliberately condemned to failure the economic conference that had been called in London to bring order out of chaos in the trade of the world. By these acts we provoked measures of retaliation that kept international commerce in a strait-jacket for the next decade. One nation after another raised its tariff, imposed quotas on imports, entered into discriminatory treaties, resorted to imperial preference, subsidized exports, depreciated its currency and blocked its exchanges, compelling those who sold to it to accept payment on a barter basis, in its own goods. The volume of the world's trade declined; America's share in that trade also declined. For years our exports stood at a third to a half of the figure that they had reached in 1929."

But Professor Wilcox by no means depairs of the future; he sees signs that the lessons of the past have been learned. He mentions three hopeful indications, one of which is the fairly wide admission of the need for freer trade—a resolute article of faith, by the way, of the present government at Ottawa. In this regard, however, it is as well to recall that Mr. Churchill once said in qualification of the Atlantic Charter that Great Britain was "no more committed to the abolition of imperial preference than the American government was committed to the abolition of their protective tariffs." But much has happened since then to emphasize the folly of past trade practices. And even the economic novice understands the simple fact that if, for example, the two creditor nations on this continent—Canada and the United States—do not ease their tariffs against imports, their allies as well as their enemies will be driven back to the controls, restrictions, discriminatory agreements and preferential systems of trade to which Professor Wilcox refers. That means economic chaos.

On the tariff aspect of the presidential election campaign, the New York Times, in its three-column editorial explaining why it is supporting Mr. Roosevelt, charges the Republican Party with sinister designs on Mr. Cordell Hull's multi-lateral trade-agreement plan—bitterly assailed, but grudgingly supported, by the high tariff proponents in Congress when the agreements were up for renewal last year. The great New York daily, indeed, says "there is not the slightest reason to believe that Mr. Dewey or his party is prepared or empowered to take constructive action" on this issue. Majority opinion in Canada, obviously, is apprehensive of any postwar policy which seeks to revive the idea that nations can live on the mythical gospel of a one-way trade.

AN ORIENTAL DRAMA

AS WAS TO BE EXPECTED, THE "STILL" well case has stirred up the Chinese soup and spilled it into the presidential election campaign. But it may be doubted if even those who have been closest to the Chungking regime really know the mind of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. To what extent he unburdened himself at the Cairo conference when he met Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt; exactly what are his feelings toward Marshal Stalin, whose methods he may imitate but whose policies he may suspect; how he proposes to "clean house" as he is expected to do; and what his reactions may be to the present situation—these are questions he alone can answer. Like so many of his compatriots, he is probably a magnificent poker player. The stakes are huge, nothing less than the future of China and its population of nearly 600,000,000.

The Japanese naturally will offer the Generalissimo every inducement to close the "incident" and bring the war to a close. It would not be at all surprising if the Emperor himself, exercising his divine prerogatives, eliminated the war party, appointed ministers who were known to be Liberal, and then made his approaches to Chiang Kai-shek for peace and a division of the co-prosperity sphere—provided that the generalissimo in his turn suggested to the United States that he could bring the war to an end, save endless lives and money by a negotiated peace which would give the United States certain trading prerogatives. Such a proposal would sound well, of course, but not get very far.

Not for a moment is it suggested that the generalissimo would consider any terms except those enunciated by the Allies, but exactly what the Japanese may do under the circumstances is most interesting, because the situation seems to give them some chance of escape from their present disastrous dilemma. They know what to expect from the Allies, but are they sure what they might be able to get from the generalissimo? And it should be emphasized that we are witnessing an Oriental not an Occidental drama.

OUR LITERATURE GROWING

CANADIAN BOOK WEEK, STARTING today and continuing through to Nov. 11, focuses interest on contributions by men and women of this country to the field of letters. It is a figurative tug at the arm of a busy reading public to direct its attention to achievement of writers of the Dominion. But as years go by, and the output of Canadians gains wider recognition, it is an encouraging gesture to those who are strengthening that medium of Canada's culture.

Canada has yet to produce a Hamsun; a Tom Wolfe, a Remarque or a Sokolov to capture the full fabric of its nationality for the printed page. This country lays no claim yet to the greater geniuses of an all-time international literature. But it is moving along the road to a distinctive and important form of prose that is gaining an increasing public. Apart from eastern Canadian writers who have won more than passing praise from an international public, the west, too, is adding its particular measures to the beat of the march of progress.

Most recently acclaimed is Victoria's Bruce Hutchison, whose "Hollow Men" is a current Book Club choice. But Hutchison does not stand alone. Emily Carr, with those delightful tales of a bygone Victoria, has gained a reputation which is flattering not only to her home city, but to her Canada. They are two whose achievements invite the reading public to delve more deeply into Canadian writings. The invitation is stressed during the days to come through the observance of the week sponsored by the Canadian Authors' Association.

As Canada grows in nationhood, and the challenge of war living and production has greatly accelerated that growth, her literature becomes increasingly important. None should be more familiar with it than Canadians. And they can only gain that familiarity by reading the very substantial volume of works already published.

CANADA'S GREAT NATURALIST

DEATH CAME YESTERDAY TO JACK Miner. His name was synonymous with Canada's bird life conservation. He was 79 and active until a sudden heart seizure took him.

Few passings will leave so warm an appreciation of the enrichment of life as his. He worked among and for those creatures of the air who have brought light and joy to human hearts. His death might seem a breaking of those earthbound fetters which hold man to the common round, an unfolding of wings to carry forth a gentle spirit.

Jack Miner found an avocation he loved and the world loved him for it. A naturalist, he remained close to those things most men lose after childhood. To him the call of his feathered friends was music understood. His was an eye and ear attuned to sight and sound missed by men of streets and pavements carrying the hurrying scene and noises of mechanical living.

The world honored Jack Miner for his care of migratory birds and men and governments assisted him in the maintenance of his conservation program. But his greatest satisfaction came from his knowledge of a job well done. He has written a chapter in human endeavor which will continue to shine; he helped the birds and they were his friends.

IT CAME TOO LATE

AN EASTERN WRITER SUGGESTS A whimsical gesture of appreciation to Edgar Allan Poe for the technique he developed nearly a century ago in the construction of the modern mystery story. He notes the manuscript of Poe's "The Murders in the Rue Morgue," the model for that highly lucrative literary (?) form, was recently auctioned for $34,000.

"That," says the writer, "is more money than poor Edgar ever saw or even dreamed of in his wildest dreams, which were considerably wild." He suggests those who have followed the Poe tradition in the mystery story might have clubbed together and purchased the manuscript themselves, enshrined it and offered devout thanks every morning before sitting down to the type-writer.

There is an appreciative touch there, a fitting genuflection. But it would not put butter on Poe's toast now. Better that the spectacle of belated appreciation of genius dead and gone give spiritual strength to those living who see themselves as potential belatedly appreciated geniuses when they too are dead and gone.

Radical idea: How would it do to let manufacturers, instead of politicians, decide on the best way to resume ordinary manufacturing?

Up In Labrador

By B. T. RICHARDSON

THE 99-YEAR LEASE of right to control and operate Goose Bay airport in Labrador in the defence of Canada, coming in the midst of important aviation discussions, will make Canadians more aware of the relations that exist between their country and its northeast neighbor, Newfoundland and the Coast of Labrador. In the history of international relations, there is nothing comparable to the series of events, extending back almost 300 years, in which Labrador became a part of Newfoundland rather than Canada.

Labrador has been banded back and forth between Newfoundland and Canada, in the days when high policy was made entirely in London. The full strategic importance of this last continental coastline of North America facing Europe has been suddenly realized. The boundary between Canada and Labrador was settled by a Privy Council decision in 1927 in such a way that there is still low grumbling about it in the Canadian Parliament. If history were different, Labrador would have been part of Canada, as the geography of North America intended it should be, and there would have been no question of rights to operate a crucial airport on world aviation routes there. The 99-year lease of Goose Bay airport has come after three years of uncertainty about legal rights there, though the uncertainty has not interfered in any way with the use of Goose Bay in the war nor with Canada-Newfoundland relations in general. The fact that Canada spent $25,000,000 to build an airport in Labrador and was content to wait three years for a formal agreement on controlling it indicated much mutual goodwill between the two countries.

LABRADOR HAS BEEN a long time coming to the world notice that it occupies today because of its valuable airport. The story goes back to the Treaty of Paris in 1763. That treaty defies the claims of Britain in North America after the defeat of France. In 1759, the British under General Wolfe, captured Quebec. In the settlement of 1763, the question of Labrador was raised with British colonial officials at the instigation of the Hudson's Bay Company. In order to prevent the French traders, who conducted commerce with the Indians, from occupying the fairly lucrative trade along the codfish and whaling coast of Labrador, that coast was transferred to Newfoundland. The method by which this was done was simply to issue a new commission to the Governor of Newfoundland, then Captain Thomas Graves, so that he became "Governor of Newfoundland and of the Coast of Labrador." This Royal Commission, which the Privy Council studied in 1927 in its search of legal claims to the territory in order to define its boundary, defined the coast to include territory extending from Hudson Strait to the mouth of the St. John's River in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, opposite Anticosti Island.

In 1772-73 trouble was growing between the French-Canadian traders interested in the Labrador Coast and the Newfoundland government, over fishing rights. In April, 1773, an order in council was passed to transfer Labrador back to Quebec. This was the period in which acrimony was rising between the British government and the Atlantic colonies, which developed into the American Revolutionary War and the complete break of 13 colonies from Britain. There were reasons, therefore, for pacifying the claims of French-Canadian interests. The Quebec Act of 1774 recognized Quebec's claim to Labrador. But Quebec's interests were confined to salmon and seal fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence as far as the Strait of Belle Isle, and Quebec neglected the important cod and whale fishing area of Labrador's Atlantic coast. Newfoundland, the centre of cod and whale fishing, regarded this neglect with hostility and agitation for the return of Labrador.

WHEN THE NEWFOUNDLAND Act was passed in 1809, the whole of Labrador was again assigned to Newfoundland, and the British North America Act (Seigniorial Rights), 1825, recognized this transfer. The boundary had never been clarified. If Newfoundland had joined in the Canadian federation in 1867, as seemed likely at one stage, the matter would probably have been settled as an internal issue. Finally, Canada and Newfoundland agreed to submit the Labrador boundary to arbitration by the Privy Council. The judgment was written by Viscount Cave.

One of the strange features of the case was that Sir John Simon, eminent British lawyer, participated in preparing the Canadian case; but later joined the other side. Newfoundland's case was upheld by the Privy Council. The point at issue was how much territory was involved in the description "Coast of Labrador." The Privy Council decided that it included "the watershed of rivers falling into the sea on that shore." That is why the boundary of Labrador represents a large segment jutting into the province of Quebec, instead of, as the old history books used to show, a narrow strip of coastal territory.

TWO DAYS AFTER the judgment was published, the late C. H. Cahan asked the government at Ottawa to purchase the Labrador territory. A flurry of questions arose in the Canadian Parliament. One member estimated the territory assigned to Labrador to be worth $500,000,000, probably an exaggeration.

Yet Canada-Newfoundland relations, thrust into the forefront of policy both at Ottawa and St. John's, are moving into a new pattern. The purchase of Labrador is one possibility, though nothing has been done about it since Mr. Cahan suggested it. If, at some future date, Newfoundland decided to join Canada, Labrador might be exchanged for a permanent grant. But none of the possibilities of the situation are subject of official comment.

The War Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Associated Press War Analyst
 The momentum of the preliminary to the Allied offensive against the German Rhineland defenses is increasing suggestively—a reassurance that, winter or no winter, we still may expect an early development of this trial of strength which will go far towards determining how quickly the Allies can achieve final victory over Germany.

Is there yet time to knock out Hitler this year? Well, the chill November winds and rain and mud along the fighting front warn against hasty conclusions.

There is no sign the Allied high command has abandoned hope of early victory. However, he would be a rash optimist who didn't recognize that Allied armies might be stalled for a considerable time at the wide and swift Rhine, which will be heavily defended on its east bank and presents a formidable barrier.

It strikes me that we may expect the coming offensive to be a quick, powerful blow.

Once the Allies are over the Rhine in force they will have broken the back of their task. Thus the length of the war depends greatly on how long it takes to negotiate this strongest of Hitler's remaining western defenses.

One of the signs of the impending storm is the intensification of Allied bombing over Germany.

Letters To The Editor

ALDERMAN DAVIES AND THE 'INFAMOUS SERMON'

Personally, I feel that Dr. McLeod made a great mistake in delivering this sermon before first consulting the police department. Had he done this, it would have been given in a milder form.

There are always two sides to every question.

During the past year the police department, having a free hand to do their duty, Victoria, can claim that the police are making every effort to do their duty. Alderman Davies states:

"As a seaport town, Victoria is without question the cleanest and most moral in the whole wide world."

This, of course, is nonsense. What he should have said is that Victoria is now in a cleaner state than during the past years, but certainly not through the efforts of Alderman Davies, but to the credit of the police. And the fault lies with the apathy of the citizen.

I would respectfully suggest that Dr. McLeod and Dean Elliot meet the heads of the police and detective force, get the true facts, and then preach a sermon upon the facts given them. They will see the many difficulties that every police force is up against in bringing a charge before a magistrate and proving the case to get a conviction.

RE PROPOSED WILLOWS PARK PURCHASE

An item of news in your Tuesday's issue concerning "possible sale by the city of the exhibition grounds" to Oak Bay municipality calls for some explanation.

A few months back an attempt was made to override the decision of the City Council to not permit a rodeo show at the Willows Park, through the action of the B.C. Agricultural Association and Oak Bay Municipal Council. Now it would seem that an attempt is being made to secure absolute control of these grounds by removing the city's representation on the board of directors of the B.C. Agricultural Association, so that any kind of show can be staged at the Willows without interference by the city.

Dr. McLeod, in his very mild attack, has called attention to the fact that over $1,000,000 was spent in gambling during the race meet recently in Victoria, and which he also associated, very properly, with the degradation of underworld activities, which are causing so much concern to our decent police department, making it more and more diffi-

U.B.C. President Speaks At College Prizegiving

Dr. Norman MacKenzie discusses postwar education. Seated on the platform, left to right, are: Austin I. Curtis, chairman of the school board; Logan Mayhew, Dr. S. J. Willis, superintendent of education for B.C.; Robert Knight, president of District Council, Canadian Legion; Trustee W. A. Bayliss and Miss Gwen Scott. On Dr. MacKenzie's left is Dr. J. Ewing, principal of Victoria College, who presided.

Education in its true sense is the sum total of the influences that make us what we are, Dr. Norman MacKenzie, president of the University of British Columbia, said at Victoria College prizegiving in Victoria High School auditorium, Friday night.

It is up to parents, said Dr. MacKenzie, speaking on "Post-war Education," to ask themselves what kind of society and what type of country they wanted for their children. By doing so they would insure their young people having the advantages of the nation.

SCHOOL INFLUENCE

"Home, church and school are the most important factors in a child's life," he said. "Industrialized life has lessened home influence. Today the church has less status and impetus, too. The school is of great importance, because there a boy and girl come under the teacher's influence from six years of age on.

"Teachers now have tremendous opportunities in shaping children's lives. They should be most carefully chosen; have the best training and pay of anyone in our society.

"I believe every boy and girl should have all the education of whichever kind he or she is capable and desirous. Everyone should have basic education in language, literature and mathematics. To the educators will go the task of solving the problem of vocational education in the postwar era."

SCIENCE STUDIES

Dr. MacKenzie noted that Canada's record in science and research was poor, compared with that of other countries. Canadians must improve it so the wealth of the scientific world would be open to them.

Universities, he said, were powerful influences, for they produce a group who through exchanges of opinion had the power to discriminate. For specialists such as a doctor, dentist or lawyer who had not had an introduction to the humanities through liberal arts, was an educated man.

PRIZE FOR COLLEGE

Dr. MacKenzie commended Victoria College on its new principal, Dr. Ewing, saying the institution is contributing to the community through looking after a group which wanted to continue its education.

Hon. H. G. T. Perry, Minister of Education, introduced Dr. MacKenzie. He said B.C. needed more decentralization of education and that Victoria College serves as a model for future junior colleges which might be established within the province.

Dr. J. M. Ewing who presided, paid tribute to his predecessor, the late Prof. Percy Elliott and also to Dr. E. B. Paul first principal of the college.

After presentation of prizes,

John Beckwith gave a piano solo, playing "Rhapsody in G Minor" by Brahms.

Several scholarships had already been presented vice-principal J. Cunningham said. The following were given last night: Royal Institution and Frank Eaton Scholarship, to John G. Darling, presented by Austin I. Curtis; Alliance France Libre prize, to (Mrs.) Rebecca Hobbs, presented by Mrs. R. Archibald; David Spencer, Ltd. Scholarship, to Gertrude Lee and Winsome C. Smith, presented by J. W. Spencer. Mr. Spencer presented each winner (they received 100 points each) with the full amount of the scholarship. Quita Nichol Bursary to Joyce A. Harman, presented by Mrs. Nichol; Quita

Nichol Bursary, to Ella K. Allen, presented by Mrs. Nichol. The prize was won by Iva Lisicka but reverted to Miss Allen. Quita Nichol Bursary to Lillian B. Chung (won by Gertrude Lee but reverted to Miss Chung), University Women's Club Scholarship, to Gwendolyn M. Shaw (first won by Gertrude Lee but reverted to Miss Shaw) presented by Miss Ellen Hart. This prize was doubled by the club, making it a $100 scholarship. Kathleen Agnew Scholarship, by John H. Syrett, presented by Miss Agnew; Hudson's Bay Co. Scholarship, to H. Blood Donors Down Says Red Cross

People of Canada have given 759,705 donations of blood from Jan. 1, 1944, to Sept. 30, Dr. J. T. Phair, chairman of the National Blood Donors Committee, told the Canadian Red Cross Central Council in Toronto today.

"A marked falling-off of donors due, no doubt, to the belief that hostilities were about to terminate, was noticeable, but in response to an urgent appeal in the newspapers and on the radio there has been a modest improvement," Dr. Phair reported.

As chairman of the National Junior Red Cross Committee, Dr. Phair said that the war fund of this organization had reached $485,464 at the end of September this year.

Second Lieut. Therese Vanier, Montreal, left, acts as guide in Paris to S. Sgt. M. E. Dobell, Toronto, and Pte. N. M. Templeton, Niagara, Ont. Lieut. Vanier is the daughter of Maj-Gen. George P. Vanier, Canada's Ambassador to France and before the war lived in Paris.

Dorothy Dix

Dear Dorothy Dix: Do you think it is right to forbid a 15-year-old girl having any association with boys? I believe that parents should be somewhat strict with their children, but isn't it carrying things too far when an adolescent girl is not permitted to hold a telephone conversation with the boys of her own group, or to have a date, or to have a boy come to her house?

Just what is your personal opinion of this matter?

PARENTS THROW GIRLS TO WOLVES

Answer: Overly strict parents, who think they are protecting their little ewe lambs by never letting them have even a peek out of the home corral, are really throwing them to the wolves. They are bringing upon their girls the dangers they fear, for they are making boys mysterious and romantic figures and hence desirable, instead of letting their Sallies and Mamies grow up with the boy next door and the one across the street and know them as they are, shorn of all illusions. No girls are so boy-crazy as the ones who are never permitted to have a date.

Even the dumbest parents should have enough sense to know that they can't keep their daughters from thinking about boys by forbidding them to do so; and that their only chance of being able to protect them is to let them have their company at home where they can get acquainted with the lads and see whether they are desirable friends or not.

The Garden of Eden episode should be required reading for all parents of girls. Eve's granddaughters still have the hankering after forbidden fruit.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a girl of 16, engaged to a boy with whom I am terribly in love. We plan to be married on his next furlough, but I have very bad health, have fainting spells every day. He says that makes no difference to him, but do you think it would be fair to him for me to marry him under the circumstances?

ADELE.

Answer: No, there would be no happiness in such a marriage for either one of you. Get cured first. Health is the prime requisite in every marriage.

Enormous Hats
And Sleek Black
In Paris Fashions

By MARGARET ECKER
PARIS (CP)—A Paris fashion show is a two-ringed circus. It is just as much fun to watch the people attending as it is the mannequins.

You wonder if the French women came to the fashion show to look at the new fall clothes or at each other. It's toss-up which is smartest anyway.

Every single one of them, as she takes her place at the fashion show, is sure she looks attractive. And is sure the rest of the world thinks so. Maybe that's the secret of the Parisienne's charm.

They're wearing black just now, but with a difference—black suits so well tailored they hurt women with enormous velvet turbans, enormous hats of many colors.

The woman beside this correspondent was sleek in black with a creation of wine and pale blue velvet, round and large, perched precariously on her forehead. She couldn't have been a day less than 50. But that's one of the clever wrinkles of French women—they go right on being smart as paint long after the age when Canadian women retire into practical hats.

In the show, held in the salon of a world-famous couturier, there was a blue, cuddly house coat covering bright pink lounging pyjamas, with pink and blue booties. There was a bright red coat flowing full from the shoulders, and lined with black fur. There was an evening gown of bronze net, studded with gold sequins, worn with a floating scarf that might have been a costume for "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

BRIGHT TARTANS

There were tartan dresses with flowing pleated skirts. There were wool dresses whose bodices seemed to have got their inspirations from the battledress blouse, complete with two deep pleated pockets and bloused back.

All in all it was very wonderful and nice to know that some of the things were left that women are fighting for.

Australia produces normally approximately one-fourth the total amount of wool grown in the world; Argentina ranks second as a wool producer and the United States third.

350 At Metropolitan Church Dinner

Annual congregational rally of Metropolitan United Church was held Tuesday night, when 350 men and women, including a number of servicemen, attended a dinner in the Metropolitan Sunday School room, at which Herbert Pendray presided.

Speaker was Dr. E. D. Braden of Vancouver, who gave an address on the place of the church in the postwar world.

During the war every institution in Europe has been tested and the only one which has stood up to persecution and borne its witness is the church," he told the gathering. "Governments, universities, other institutions have folded up."

He discussed the part the church must play in the postwar world and said that in spite of any economic adjustments the church will have its own mission to perform.

Albert Sullivan expressed the thanks of the congregation to Dr. Braden. Dr. A. E. Whitehouse, pastor of Metropolitan United, welcomed the congregation to the dinner, which was convened by Mrs. Bertha Parsons. Among the guests were Dr. A. S. Tuttle, past moderator of the United Church of Canada, and Mrs. Tuttle.

Soloists were R. McAdam and Mrs. Arthur Dowell.

The motor vehicle registration in New York City doubled from 1925 to 1940 while the population increased only one-eighth.

Montreal-Australia Military Air Service Started By R.A.F.

MONTREAL (CP)—An R.A.F. Transport Command plane arrived in the Antipodes today, to mark the official opening of a regular bi-weekly ferrying service between Montreal and Sydney, Australia—the longest single air route in the world.

Arrival of the plane—the famous Liberator AL504, the Commando—opened the service which gives Britain a round-the-world military air route. The Commando left Montreal Tuesday on her journey of 11,520 statute miles, flying by way of California, Honolulu, Canton Island, Fiji and Auckland, N.Z., to Sydney.

Actually, the Commando's flight started in Moscow. The plane had gone there from Montreal as part of Prime Minister Churchill's mission to the Kremlin, and took the party back to London. It brought Lord Swinton, British minister for civil aviation, from London to Montreal, and left on its trans-Pacific flight a few hours later.

Captain of the Liberator on the inaugural flight was Air Commodore G. J. Powell, C.B.E., senior air staff officer at Montreal headquarters of the R.A.F. Transport Command. The crew

Lt. Gen. Sir O. Leese To Command Army Group in S.E. Asia

LONDON (CP)—Lt. Gen. Sir Oliver W. H. Leese, 49, commander of the British 8th Army in Italy since December, 1943, was appointed Friday commander of the newly-organized 11th Army Group, which will operate in southeast Asia under the direction of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten.

Lt. Gen. Sir Richard L. McCreery, 46, simultaneously was named to command the 8th Army, which includes the 1st Canadian Corps.

A group contains more than one army, but the only part of the 11th group so far publicly identified is the British 14th Army, now operating in Burma. The U.S. and Chinese forces in northern Burma, formerly commanded by Gen. Stilwell, are a part of the 14th Army and, therefore, will be under Gen. Leese's overall generalship.

Gen. Leese's appointment is the strongest indication to date of a build-up in Admiral Mountbatten's ground forces.

Lord Louis' Southeast Asia Command includes Ceylon, Burma, Thailand, Malaya and part of Sumatra. It does not include French Indo-China or China.

LEAD ADVANCE

Gen. Leese directed the swift, secret transfer of the 8th Army in the spring from the Adriatic side of Italy to the western slopes of the Apennines to operate with the 5th Army in the breakthrough to Rome.

Gen. McCreery, a cavalryman, whose regiment was one of the earliest to be mechanized in the British army, started this war as a colonel, fought through the first Great War in France and earned mention in dispatches and the D.S.O.

He became chief of the general staff to Gen. Sir Harold Alexander before the Battle of Alamein, and planned campaigns which broke the German and Italian armies in Egypt, the western desert, Tunisia and Sicily.

Included Flt. Lt. G. Wright of Tisdale, Sask.

FREQUENT FLIGHTS

The Commando's trip inaugurates a military service between Canada and Australia with a frequency of "several" flights a week, which will be increased as military needs dictate. Only military personnel and government-sponsored civilian passengers will be carried.

The regular trans-Pacific flights will be operated by No. 231 (long range communications) Squadron of the R.A.F. at Montreal, and in future this squadron alone will be operating practically a round-the-world service with east-bound flights as far as India, and west-bound flights to Australia.

Dies At 91 Years

Mrs. George Maynard, 91, resident of Victoria since 1860, died Thursday at St. Joseph's Hospital. A member of that rapidly dwindling band of pioneers who came here in the city's earliest days, Mrs. Maynard remained mentally and physically active until almost the last and dearly loved to recall the old days when Victoria was a tiny seaport village.

Mrs. Maynard came to Victoria with her parents in the bark

Mrs. G. H. Maynard
... here 84 years

Grecian, landing in Esquimalt after a nine-month voyage around Cape Horn from London, where she was born. She was seven years of age at the time and all through her life she never forgot the thrills and excitement of that voyage.

When the family came first to Victoria they went to live at Race Rocks, where Mrs. Maynard's father was the lightkeeper.

When she was 19 years of age, the then Mary Elizabeth Davies was married at old St. John's Church to George H. Maynard. They had 11 children, six of whom survive. Mr. Maynard, a prominent auctioneer, died 20 years ago. In recent years, Mrs. Maynard lived at "Erin Hall," Carberry Gardens.

In 1937 when Victoria celebrated the 75th anniversary of its incorporation, Mrs. Maynard was one of the guests of honor at a civic banquet and reception.

AND REMEMBER, JOHNS-MANVILLE INSULATION!

If your house could talk—it would probably ask you to insulate—and to get a well-known, proven brand like Johns-Manville, too! Keeping heat in, and cold air out is a big job for any house—without the protection of a good insulation! That's why home owners who are interested in increasing the value of their houses—cutting down on fuel costs—and having really first-rate shelter—are insisting on Johns-Manville insulation!

Why don't you stop in soon and talk it over with us?

Crowding Necessitates Building Program

Saanich school board, in preparation for setting up a school building program, agrees with Saanich Council school costs are becoming prohibitive, but points out the urgent need for more school accommodation as the municipality's school population rises sharply, adding it firmly believes school costs should be borne by the government, D. R. McAdams, school board secretary, said today.

Illustrating the sharp increase in the number of pupils attending Saanich schools, Mr. McAdams reported a jump of approximately 150 in school population during the summer months of July and August, and an additional increase of 40 pupils to date since the schools opened.

The school board will meet Monday evening to draw up its building program.

'In Camera' Meetings Scored By Cresswell

Stating that he was "absolutely through with Dr. Hugh McLeod" after the latter refused to meet the police commission in public, T. A. Cresswell, candidate for alderman in the civic elections, told approximately 100 men and women at a campaign meeting in Chamber of Commerce Friday night, that too much civic business was handled in camera.

"If I am elected I will use all my endeavors to have all meetings at the City Hall open to the public, both council and executive meetings as there is far far too much done in camera," he said.

Discussing Dr. McLeod's refusal for a public meeting, Mr. Cresswell remarked: "That in my estimation was enough answer for the citizens of Victoria."

Claude Chesser spoke briefly at the meeting and said that he had never seen a cleaner or more respectable city than Victoria in all his travels.

Civil servants will pay tribute to the memory of 1914-18 war dead at a ceremony in the Parliament Buildings' rotunda next Friday afternoon at 4.45 when a wreath will be laid on the memorial plaque. Relatives of civil servants killed in the war are invited to attend, as well as the public generally.

Civic Election Field Gets Bigger, Nominate Dec. 7

Indications Ald. John A. Worthington, chairman of the city's water board, member of important city committees, and champion of the Jubilee Hospital, would announce his intention of seeking re-election to the City Council within the next day or two, accounted today for all incumbents whose terms expire at the end of December.

His entry would raise to 10 the number in the field for five council seats. To date four or five have announced plans to contest police commission posts, two of which are open. Three aspirants are also in the field for three school board posts.

In the majority list, Percy E. George only has announced his intention of seeking office, but Mayor Andrew McGavin, first eight-term mayor in the city's history, is expected to state his candidacy for re-election, in a few days.

Three of five council incumbents have definitely declared themselves in the ring. They are Aldermen Margaret D. Christie, D. D. McTavish and W. L. Morgan. Ald. Archie Willis has retired from the field after 10 years' service.

Contesting seats will be R. A. C. Dewar, veteran of many Victoria councils; Harold M. Diggon, Trustee F. G. Mulliner, Doug Fletcher, Mrs. Alice McGregor and T. A. Cresswell.

Ald. McTavish has also thrown his hat into the police commission ring to join Ald. B. J. Gadsden, present commissioner; Earl Pollock and Mrs. Elsie Foyer. Joe North has indicated his wife would run, but Mrs. North has made no announcement. The candidate leading the poll in that section will be elected to a two-year term as commissioner, with the runner-up taking office for one year.

Two trustees, board chairman Austin I. Curtis, and Mrs. L. Bertha Parsons, have been joined by a former trustee, Cecil M. Parrott, in seeking election to the three seats.

All Greece Freed Of Nazi Invaders, R.A.F. Scouts Say

ROME (AP)—The Germans have been completely cleared from Greece, Allied headquarters announced today.

R.A.F. pilots on reconnaissance flights reported they were unable to find any traces of the enemy who occupied the country early in 1941.

The Germans seeking to escape the closing Allied trap, have been fleeing into Serbia and Albania. In the last 24 hours small enemy columns were seen in the vicinity of Lake Prespa, just across the Greek border in Albania.

"We believe German rear-guards went over into Serbia Thursday night," an R.A.F. officer said.

BRIDGES DESTROYED

In their retreat up the Vardar Valley toward the Serbian city of Skopje the Germans blew up may road and rail bridges in an effort to delay the pursuing British. A communiqué from Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisan headquarters said the Patriots were besieging Bitolj, 13 miles north of the Greek border, and Skopje, 70 miles farther north.

Loan Display Shows Combined Operations

Despite dull weather the special combined operations display at Beacon Hill park went on as scheduled this afternoon, with Army, Navy and Air Force personnel participating.

The 27th Ack Ack battery paraded along Douglas from the corner of Hillside, preceded by a sound truck from the National War Finance committee urging citizens to follow on to Beacon Hill Park and see the show.

At the park the anti-aircraft guns were set up and they fired on targets drawn by R.C.A.F. planes. The dull weather enhanced rather than detracted from the show because the tracers were more easily discernible on the dull day.

Anchored off-shore, four Fairmiles of the R.C.N. threw up a smoke screen.

Dean Dr. McLeod Not Eligible

Neither Dean Spencer H. Elliott nor Rev. Dr. Hugh McLeod are eligible as candidates for civil office, it was learned today from M. F. Hunter, city clerk, who stated the two ministers were not listed on the city voters' list as property-owners.

A citizen must have been a property owner for six months to stand for office on the city council or police commission, Mr. Hunter explained.

Ald. W. H. Davies, Thursday, had suggested Dean Elliott and Dr. McLeod run for seats on the police commission.

Both ministers today made it clear that, though they were not listed on the voters' list as property-owners, they had registered as voters.

Dr. McLeod, in regard to eligibility of ministers for office, once property requirements were fulfilled, said United Church ministers were in the same position as other citizens, with the exception of taking office on school boards. In that instance, he said, ministers were not eligible to run on school boards under provisions of the School Act.

Island, Mainland Teams Will Compete

Winning Vancouver Island civil defence teams will compete with mainland teams from Burnaby and Vancouver Sunday at provincial civil defence finals. Competitions are scheduled in wardens, casualty, rescue incident officers and decontamination services.

Rev. Bryan S. W. Green, senior chaplain of civil defence forces in Great Britain, will address all competitors at 12.30 Sunday afternoon.

Visitors from the mainland will include W. C. Mainwaring, chairman, advisory council, Provincial Civilian Protection Committee; Insp. S. F. M. Moodie, B.C. Police, who will act as chief judge; J. A. Clou, Burnaby controller, who will serve as adjutant, and the following judges: N. Atkins, fire lieutenant, Vancouver; R. A. del. Harwood, district officer, St. John Ambulance Brigade; G. A. House, superintendent, New Westminster St. John Ambulance Brigade; R. B. Kipling of the St. John Ambulance Brigade; Capt. F. Franklin, R.C.E.; Constable R. Gilbert, B.C. Police; Mrs. D. McKercher, commandante, Burnaby Ambulance Corps; C. J. Martin of Burnaby and F. C. Pauline, Vancouver.

Final Loan Play Tells Story of 'This Canada'

The final play in the Victory Loan series will be heard over station CJVI Sunday at 7 p.m. and will feature "This Canada" by J. K. Thomas, editor of New World. It was published in that magazine in the April, 1944 issue and has been adapted for radio by Maurice Rapkin. In it a Canadian editor with a great love for his country and its people and an abiding faith in Canada's destiny, looks with clear eyes at its resources, its follies, its heritage, its war contribution and its future.

Hon. H. Anscomb, Minister of Public Works and Municipal Affairs, will give a three-minute address on behalf of the loan at the conclusion of the play.

Greater Victoria Records Building Sum of $2,563,887

Greater Victoria's 1944 civilian construction had climbed in value to a total of $2,563,887 at the end of October, according to figures announced today by municipal building inspectors.

Leading the field was the city itself, which reported a 10-month aggregate of $1,473,621, including $153,611 for October. The larger amount covered 703 projects and was well ahead of the corresponding figure last year when values were $907,856. The October, 1943, figure was $213,448, composed largely of buildings constructed by Wartime Housing Ltd. Eight homes were among projects started last month.

For the week ending today Victoria reported 14 permits issued for work worth $13,435, including two dwellings.

SAANICH
Nine permits were issued in Saanich during the week for buildings valued at $8,675, one of the permits being for a $5,775 six-room house on Nicholson Street.

Total for October was 43 permits covering values of $32,215. Twelve were for houses worth $43,075. In comparison, 33 permits were issued for October, 1943, of which two were for houses and three for completions at a total value of $12,000.

Total for the first 10 months of this year was 514 permits representing $671,050. Of these, 185 were for houses at $612,675. Last year, for the same period, 415 permits were issued at a value of $213,228, of which 75 were for houses, valued at $121,630.

OAK BAY

Oak Bay building more than doubled during the first 10 months of 1944 compared with the first 10 months of 1943. During the 1944 period 160 building permits valued at $361,921 have been issued, and in 1943 there were 107 valued at $187,695. Of these there were 75 for houses in 1944 valued at $340,845, and only 28 for houses in 1943, valued at $102,300.

During October the total building value in Oak Bay was $21,985, representing 17 building permits, compared with 9 permits, valued at $20,200 for October, 1943. There were permits for four houses October of this year, value $18,150, compared with two houses, value $7,000, in October, 1943.

This week there were no permits issued for new buildings, but permits to the value of $600 were issued for alterations.

ESQUIMALT

Two permits for construction totalling $6,900 were issued in Esquimalt during October, bringing the number of permits issued from Jan. 1, 1944, to date, up to 43 for construction costing $57,295.

There were no permits this week and the two issued during October were both for dwellings, one at $3,000 and one at $3,900.

In October of last year only one permit, for construction of a garage to cost $200, was issued.

From January 1 to October 31 of 1943, 53 permits were granted for construction amounting to $425,858. Wartime Housing accounted for the large total.

Mass to Celebrate Irish Brothers

Bishop John C. Cody will officiate at a Pontifical High Mass, Tuesday morning, in St. Andrew's Cathedral, in honor of Edmund Ignatius Rice, founder of the Irish Christian Brothers.

Father A. Leonard of the Cathedral staff will preach the sermon.

The Irish Christian Brothers Order was founded in Waterford, Ireland, in 1802 by Edmund Rice, who before taking up the religious life, was a prosperous businessman. He died Aug. 29, 1844, after seeing the educational order he founded spreading to all parts of the world. At present there are more than 270 schools of the order throughout the world with approximately 75,000 students in attendance.

The Christian Brothers came to Victoria in May, 1915. On the opening day there were 57 pupils, the following year the number reached 100 and today is over 200.

Victoria Nature Walks

By ROBERT CONNELL
IN SUBURBAN FIELDS

The heavens on this first day of November were spread with broken masses of cloud, some of a slaty color, others grey, with patches of white, while higher up were bits of deep blue sky. The breeze was from the southwest, and every now and then brought a few drops of rain. Overhead the gulls sailed with it, their wings merely adjusting their surfaces to the wind, or occasionally with a few downward beats rising again into the glide. "Even in their very motion there was rest. Of the birds of wood and field only a solitary meadow-lark appeared in sight.

OLD AND NEW

Richmond Avenue had been left behind at King's Road, where, after passing the old barn that contrasts so strikingly with the new buildings of the neighborhood, a grassy road was followed with fields on each side. In one a pair of horses and a dozen cows were grazing, while all around, on the rim of the fields, the modern world appeared in rows of bright houses and cottages. The road was barely a wagon track running along the road allowance that marks the lower end of Dean Avenue. The short green grass showed little to break its monotony, except here and there small snow-white puffballs and patches of brown withered bracken. But there was pleasure in treading the turf after cement sidewalks, and in breathing the bracing wind-swept air.

Turning to the east, Foul Bay Road was presently reached, and here the aspect was completely changed. The grass and herbage was in places knee-deep. The withered skeletons of lupines rose above the grey and delicately feathery bent-grass. The purplish foliage of wild roses lightened by countless scarlet hips, made scattered clumps in the grass, or colored the edges of thickets. In these the taller members were chiefly aspen poplars, black hawthorn with its yellow and coppery leaves and dark fruit, and white thorn. Snow-berry with its white berries made a cheerful break in the autumn colors. Here and there a young oak sapling was seen sturdily asserting itself, and the hardhack no longer rosy-flowered, suggested more moisture than was obvious at present. The hardhack's witness was supported by clumps of the common rush, green and shining as ever.

Where by the side of the exhibition grounds Henderson Road runs as a trail, a whitethorn made a charming picture. Still retaining its foliage, it was loaded with hips to a remarkable degree, their bright red unhidden by the darkening green of the leaves. Turning south along the embryo road the region of oaks was at length reached, a sure sign of drier land though but little higher — the low outcrops of rocks confirmed it.

WINTER PLANTS

Rocks are the first places to show what winter can do in this climate with vegetation. Not only are preparations being made for the earliest spring flowers, but winter plants now flourish. Here were growing the common hair-moss and others of its class, "glistening in the light." Differing much in habit the trailing selaginella, or dwarf club-moss, is a member of an order higher than the little licorice-fern at its side, with its bright green fronds. In its turn above the mosses, the pale cup-lichen rising above moss and selaginella is of still lowlier station, but specially interesting because of its compound nature, each lichen being really two plants, a fungus furnishing the frame, and a green alga the active element. These plants of the rocks are most active in the winter months when other groups are lying low in expectation of spring and summer. And now the residential streets were reached and the countryside's open prairies left behind.

Scientists are looking toward the Arctic region as a possible source of minerals and petroleum.

ALWAYS TIRED?

Lack of Energy Can Drag You Down — Make You Feel and Look Old!

Why go through life with that "dragged, through-a-mud-hole" feeling, tired all the time? Yet many people never really know how good they can feel — because of one simple neglect. Why not shake off that tired feeling by going after the most common cause — a sluggish system! When the system is clogged with poisonous food waste and lactic acids, you can't feel or look your best. You'll be amazed at the difference when you keep regular with an all-vegetable remedy — BILE BEANS. Made from 10 pure vegetable extracts, Bile Beans are so gentle yet effective, they are called "The Medicine That Wakes Up Nature." These small liver pills stimulate the flow of liver bile, so essential for good digestion, regularity, that glad-to-be-alive feeling. For a happier, brighter tomorrow, try BILE BEANS tonight. Prove for yourself their amazingly gentle action. Over 7 million boxes used last year, convincing evidence of how greatly they help others. At druggists. 35

"THAT'S RIGHT - I'm Shorty Smith"

JUST ONE of thousands who joined up in '39. In a way I wish I was home. But in another way I don't want to come home until this job is finished. We've got to smash the Jerries once and for all. I'd hate to think that my boy would have to go through it all over again in another twenty years.

And that reminds me. The other day, our fellows were buying more Victory Bonds. And we sure did buy them. Every Bond we buy brings us that much nearer home. We buy them just like you, by deductions from our pay cheques.

You folks at home simply can't send us too much stuff. It's not until you've been through it and seen pals wounded and knocked out that you realise what it means to have enough stuff to smash the Jerries . . . it's either you or him every time — make no mistake about that.

When our planes and guns blast the life out of them, it makes it safer and better for us foot sloggers.

There's also another reason why I'm buying Victory Bonds. I figure on buying a house when I come home, and the wife and boy will need lots of things they've been going without since I've been away. And they're going to have them. But it all takes money. So that's why I'm soaking away every dollar I can spare in Victory Bonds.

Give my regards to pals in the firm. I guess you're doing a bang-up job in buying Bonds . . . and that's all to the good because we need everything you can send us . . . no kidding.

Yours,

Shorty

"The Seventh Cross" Coming to Capitol

The old bromide, "It never rains but it pours," has popped up again for Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy, Mr. and Mrs. in private life.

For six years they besieged producers, both here and in England to cast them together in a play. No luck. Recently they had to refuse an offer from Margaret Webster to play the married couple in her Broadway production of "The Cherry Orchard."

They were busy in M-G-M's "The Seventh Cross," playing husband and wife! The film, starring Spencer Tracy, opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre.

Others in the cast are Ray Collins, Felix Bressart, Signe Hasso and George Zucco.

OAK BAY-PLAZA THEATRES

One of the most difficult directorial assignments of recent years, the making of "The Strange Death of Adolf Hitler," was undertaken by James Hogan when he accepted the responsibility of making the sensational Universal horror drama. The widely discussed picture is now at the Oak Bay and Plaza Theatres.

Ludwig Donath, the Continental stage star, and "living image" of Der Fuehrer, has the leading role.
